Faithful Disciples Watch the Grave of Hannah Martin.

SHE WAS A SELF STYLED MESSIAH.

Leader of a Strange Sect of Fanatics Known as the Perfectionists—She Had Proclaimed Herself Immortal—Wonderful Influence Over Her Deluded Followers.

In Spring Grove cemetery, five miles from the city of Cincinnati, lies all that is mortal of Mrs. Hannah E. Martin, who was the self-styled Messiah of the extraordinary religious sect known as the "Perfectionists." She died on May 25.

Far from losing faith in their leader because of her death, which she frequently claimed could never happen, her devoted disciples may now be found at her graveside at any hour of the day or night, awaiting the resurrection she had promised them. When one person becomes wrapped of long watching for some sign of the dead woman's return to life, his or her place is taken by another of the devotees, and this throughout every hour of the 24 her sepulcher is guarded by those who adhere to her doctrine.

Mrs. Martin was formerly the wife of John B. Martin, a well-known restaurateur of Cincinnati, writes a correspondent of the New York Herald. She became leader of the Perfectionists while married, but gradually the love for her husband dimmed in the excitement of her new role of a female Christ, and separation was soon followed by divorce. From that time she devoted all her time to the fostering of her doctrine, and the damage her delusions have wrought has been almost incalculable.

She had been ill since November of last year, but even in her feeble condition she never for a moment relaxed control over the members of her flock and continued until the last to rule them with an iron hand. She was attended by Dr. Julia Carpenter through the weary months of her illness, which culminated, according to this doctor's certificate, in "heart failure."

The woman physician was among the staunchest of her followers and refused positively to discuss the case one way or another.

Among the evils wrought under this marvellous woman's sway have been disrupted families, deaths unattended by friends or relatives and several inmates added to the local and state insane asylums. Yes, in the face of the utter silliness of the creed and the actual blasphemy, new members have been added to its ranks, and the Perfectionists were never in a more flourishing condition than at the time of their leader's death.

The home of this strange mixture of original beliefs and mad hugging was in Walnut Hills, one of Cincinnati's most fashionable suburbs, where they practiced their tenets for 15 years. Many efforts were made by the local newspapers to root out the organization or to expose its evil by laying before the world its outrageous tenets and the very credulity, until recently, met with the sternest rebuffs, and it has been only by dint of hard work and the addition of one fact to another that the complete story has at last come out, and The Herald correspondent is now enabled for the first time to lay before the readers of its sheets a band of fanatics as the world has never seen.

The Perfectionists believed in God, but the belief in Mrs. Martin was far stronger. She was Jehovah's earthly representative, imbued with his spirit and filled with his glory. From that it was but a short step to proclaim that she was a second Christ, living through God. But in their form of worship the teachings of the Saviour were never considered for a moment, and Mrs. Martin took the Son's place in the estimation of her disciples, to whom, in their secret meetings in the "sacred rooms," she would impart the things that God had spoken to her, and her teachings would be followed with the blind faith that has marked fanaticism in all ages.

A dozen years ago, a little band of people, numbering not over 25, were studying the Bible in the Walnut Hills neighborhood and defining its teachings in the orthodox way. While they were, in a measure, religious free lancers, there was then nothing biblical or unorthodox in their methods of studying the divine word, and their belief, implicitly in God, the Father, and Christ the Son. Soon, however, they began to feel the need of a leader to take charge of their little gatherings, and eventually it fell to Mrs. Martin to arrange their studies and assume their guidance through the intricate labyrinth of religious instruction.

For Mrs. Martin had no thought but of the thousands she would finally lead over to her people, and she accepted her leadership willingly and even with humility.

But after a time—a first, almost imperceptible change in their belief came. The band grew in numbers, and Mrs. Martin began taking greater pleasure with her organization. She had meanwhile wrapped herself in a mantle of mystery and began to use visions and her own converse with the angels, and then came the startling announcement that she had been divinely commissioned as the vicar of God on earth. It was then but a short way to claiming godlike attributes for herself, and, strange to say, the former band of Biblical students accepted her teachings blindly, and became far more zealous in their adherence to her blasphemous than they had ever been in orthodox worship.

The story of their daily life was not less marvellous than their doctrines. The name of Mrs. Martin was never spoken in or out of her presence. When speaking of the prophet, the simple designation "She" was used. "She" was absolute and held the destinies of mankind in the palm of her hand. The angels of life and death were subject to her, and the planets obeyed her commands as faithfully as her lowliest subject. Their doings were absolutely secret and their ritual was a strange mixture of theosophy, pantheism, Buddhism, Shintolism and Christianity, the whole having been welded into shape by the commanding mind of the woman Christ.

Perhaps one of the worst features, aside from the pernicious effect it had upon the individual members of the order, was that none of the believers should keep anything whatever of his daily or private life from the leader. Why such an omniscient being should not know the daily history of those who were always near her without having to be told was never explained by her any more than the remainder of her absurdities. Such matters as the amount of salary received by every member and the expenditures were reported at regular intervals to the false Christ, as was also the daily intercourse in families. Nothing was of too private or sacred a nature to keep from the all-absorbing ears of Mrs. Martin.

As in nearly all religious, eternal life was on basis of the strange woman's teachings. There is not a member of the sect who believes in bodily death, and even the death of their leader does not seem to have shaken their faith.

During the life of Mrs. Martin there were many deaths in the order, but she accounted for the failure of the deceased to return in the spirit by saying that they had not sufficient faith in her teachings. For three years the little band has been fastened from the circle, and all manifestations from on high came through Mrs. Martin.

Celivacy is another of the strange teachings of the peculiar sect, and each man or woman is warned against the "temptation" of marriage.

The expenses were borne by the members. The money was given willingly and gladly, and there was never a question asked as to how it was to be used. Mrs. Martin had only to order an assessment, and it was forthcoming at once.

During the last two years of her reign there were occasional rebellions among her people. Upon one occasion Mrs. Brooke rebelled against her sister's teachings. A quarrel resulted, and Mrs. Brooke came out on top. Mrs. Martin was ordered under the bed by her plucky opponent, and she complied. Then Mrs. Brooke was selected leader, but she did not hold the place any length of time.

If Mrs. Brooke, who is again the leader, fails to exercise the wonderful influence commanded by Mrs. Martin, it is safe to say that in a few months the Perfectionists will vanish, just as the Stimulants faded away in Alabama.

Queer Negro Names.

The love of unique names is innate with the country dandy. On the plantation of Colonel Chesnut, in Crawford county, Ala., is a family of which the mother's name is Noddy Noddy. Her husband's name is Cornish Elizabeth Penny. Her husband's name is King Solomon's Watkins, and her favorite daughter bears the euphonious title of Mitrelicious, while a younger son's name is Willie Abraham's bosom.

All things hold.

Pray the good Lord.

Revelry my soul.

He is never called anything less than Willie Abraham's bosom. Another son is known as John William David Archibald Gibson. As the family is very religious, an antique girl is named I Will Arise and Go to My Father. But usually she is called I Willa for short. It was not long since that a gentleman was approached by an old dandy in Maryland who said that his wife had presented him with boy twins, and that he was "giving to him an old and a new." "After the Lord, how are you going to do that?" "Well, boss, the first I give to name 'em Hallelujah and Hallelujah." "Hallelujah isn't a name of the Lord. Still it might pass muster as such. But how on earth do you get in Hallelujah?" "Why, boss, don't you know that in the Good Book it says, 'Our Father, who art in heaven, Hallelujah be thy name?'"

No False Teeth Supplied to Prisoners.

A new question in prison practices and ethics came up in Lancaster, Pa., recently. John Sentman, a convict, serving a term for chicken stealing, sent a request to the prison inspectors that they furnish him a set of false teeth. He said he had lost his natural teeth, and could not eat. The inspectors could not find any law that authorized them to buy false teeth, and the request was refused.

Tying the Knot.

At a Babylonian wedding ceremony the priest took a thread from the garment of the bride and another from the garment of the bridegroom and tied them into a knot, which he gave to the bride. This is probably the origin of the modern saying about tying the knot in regard to marriage.

Mercenary Romans.

Seven New York Romans were arrested in one week for borrowing money of their neighbors and then refusing to repay.
